

Our Stories – Volunteers

People volunteer with us for a variety of reasons. Some people have a neurological condition themselves or know someone who does. Others have seen high profile campaigners in the media and want to help. And others, just want to volunteer for a worthwhile charity in their local community. What they all have in common is their generosity in giving their time to help us and that's just as valuable to us as a financial contribution.

Volunteering with us is a hugely rewarding experience. We're a small, friendly team who make a real difference to the wellbeing of people living with neurological conditions and their families. We'd love you to be a part of that and we'll provide you with full training and support for the role you take on.

"I've been volunteering at the Centre for 10 years. I love it. I'm part of the team and seeing the difference that we do makes to people – I can't even explain how rewarding that is."

"I like volunteering because although I have a neurological condition, I feel like here there are people to talk to you. Everyone is on a level playing field."

"Here I am just Scott. Not Scott with MS."

"I like to help people, and the staff are all very friendly."

"I have been volunteering for 10 years and choose to volunteer here because really Oxygen helps people."

"I have made friends through volunteering."

"Being introduced to the widespread offering of treatments by The Neuro Therapy Place gave an invaluable insight in to the variety of treatment options available for tailoring to individuals with neurological conditions such as; the oxygen chamber, anti-gravity treadmill, shockwave therapy and Molli Suit."

"I see firsthand how person centred treatments are offered. Organisations like The Neuro Therapy Place play a key role in rehabilitation."
